$900.47 RETURNS FROM SEAL SALE; IS GOOD SHOWING

County Makes Excellent Showing In 1924 Sale Of Christmas Seals.

An incomplete report of the financial return from the sale of Christmas seals, made by Arthur E. Roth, treasurer of the Adams County Tuberculosis society, fixes the amount to date at $900.47, approximately $550 more than was received in 1923. The returns last year were in the neighborhood of $350.

Mr. Roth stated in submitting his report that he had not received the returns from a number of districts on the sale of seals and that when all the stamps have been accounted for the total will in all probability exceed the $950 mark. This is far in excess of what the committee in charge of the seal sale expected, and is an excellent showing for Adams county.

Twenty-one $5.00 health bonds are included in the above figures.

Edmund W. Thomas, president of the county organization stated that the executive committee is desirous of having a complete tabulation from every district as soon as possible. "There are a number of districts to be heard from," said Mr. Thomas, "and the committee is anxious to compile all figures from the county as soon as possible in order to submit a report to state and national headquarters."

Mr. Thomas urged those who have not reported to the county headquarters "to get in touch with Mr. Roth at once, in order that Adams county might report its remarkable showing in the near future."

Fifteen per cent of the total sum will be sent to the state headquarters and five per cent will be sent to the national headquarters leaving the balance of 80 per cent, or approximately $760, in the treasury of the county organization for disposition in Adams county.

The money will be used to purchase and distribute educational literature, aimed at combating the spread of tuberculosis in this vicinity. The distribution of this literature is made principally through the schools in the county and most of the money will be used for this purpose. The literature is prepared by eminent tuberculosis specialists and has proven a successful method of educating the people to the best methods of fighting the disease.

Needy tubercular families are also benefited through the county organization by the receipt of food and medicine and medical attendance as the case may be. Actual treatment is also provided for tubercular patients who are financially unable to provide for themselves.

"It is a worthy cause," said President Thomas, "and Adams county is proud to be congratulated for their generous and hearty response to the appeal of the Christmas seal sale."

The committee under whose supervision the funds are handled consists of the officers of the association and the following: Raymond Shank, E. C. Tyson, Mrs. W. A. Miller, Dr. Eugene Elgin, Mrs. Margaret McMillan, Charles E. Wolf and Miss Kate Briel.

MINISTER MAKES ATTITUDE CLEAR

Emphasizes In Letter To Editor That He Is Not A Professional Pacifist.

Gettysburg, Pa.
January 10, 1925.

Editor, The Times,

Dear Sir:

I have just finished reading your paper (today's issue) and I take this opportunity of calling your attention to a mis-statement of fact in the article referring to a sermon preached by me on Friday evening in St. James Lutheran Church. In your article you say that I publicly stated that I regretted the part I took in making patriotic speeches in behalf of the government during the World War. This is an error. I did not make any such statement and never will. I have never regretted the part I took or the speeches I made. What I did say was that I was honest and sincere then, but that was not the best way to settle international differences. I would not have mentioned the little part I took except to let the audience know that I was not a professional pacifist.

I am thoroughly persuaded that there is a better way to settle these matters than an appeal to arms. Your article was wholly misleading, because it left out the heart of the discourse which was that "the church was the only institution that taught that men or nations could not possibly desire to kill each other if they followed the teachings of Jesus Christ; that by removing the causes of war you remove the possibility of war." You make no mention in your article that we were led to believe that the World War was a war to end all wars and as such we were urged to the greatest service and the greatest of sacrifices; but instead of ending all wars, there have been more than thirty wars since the treaty of Versailles.

You make no mention of the nearly ten millions of lives that were sacrificed in battle; of the five million of war widows; of the twenty millions of wounded; of the ten millions of war refugees and nothing settled by the war. Surely there is a better way of settling things between civilized nations. If there be a better way, in the name of all this immense sacrifice, let us find it! In the five years I have been a reader of your paper I have always found you ready to correct any error and I am asking you to give this letter the same prominence that you gave your former article. Assuring you of my constant regard, I remain,

Sincerely and courteously yours,
HARRY DANIELS,
Pastor, First Methodist Episcopal Church.

1924 Death Rate, Lowest In History of Pennsylvania

Figures Compiled By Chief Of Bureau Of Vital Statistics Show Rate Of 12.5 Per Thousand While In 1923 The Rate Was Fixed At 13.3 Per Thousand.

Pennsylvania's death rate for 1924 was one of the lowest in the history of the state. Statistics compiled by Dr. Wilmer R. Batt, chief of the bureau of vital statistics, Harrisburg, show that the 1924 death rate was 12.5 per thousand of population. In 1923, the rate was 13.3 per thousand.

During the year, a total of 116,000 persons died in Pennsylvania. That figure is approximately 7,000 less than in 1923. The death rates from tuberculosis and diseases of infancy were the lowest in the history of the state in the past year, Dr. Batt reported.

Seventy-one persons in each hundred thousand unit of population died from tuberculosis of the lungs in 1924 as contrasted with 75 in 1923. The 1924 infant mortality rate was 80 per thousand births. In 1923, the rate was 99 so that 2,000 less babies died from diseases of infancy in 1924 than in the preceding year.

Both the infant mortality and the tuberculosis rates have been cut in half in the last eighteen years, Dr. Batt reported. In 1906, the tuberculosis rate was 130 while the infant mortality rate was 167.

Attorney General Moves to Bring J. L. Butt Case to Attention of Grand Jurors

State Official Appoints John D. Keith To Act In Capacity Of Special Prosecutor After Request Is Made To Him Through Regular Court Channels; Attorney Accepts Duty, "Though Very Distasteful"; Action May Lead To Criminal Prosecution Of Former Head Of Law Firm Who Figured in Financial Crash.

(Special To The Gettysburg Times)

Harrisburg, Jan. 12.—George W. Woodruff, state attorney general, this morning announced at his office at the Capitol the appointment of John D. Keith, Gettysburg attorney, as special district attorney for Adams county, to take "whatever action may be possibly necessary" against J. L. Butt, recently disbanded Gettysburg attorney, whose financial failure last spring was followed by an investigation by the committee of censors of the Adams county bar association.

Attorney General Woodruff stated that he had acted on the request of the Adams county court, who employed an old Pennsylvania statute in asking the attorney general to appoint a special prosecutor to prosecute an action against Butt, if he finds evidence to support a charge.

Mr. Woodruff last week asked Mr. Keith to take the appointment of special district attorney, and this morning, he said, he had received Mr. Keith's acceptance of the appointment. "Although he agreed to accept the appointment," the attorney general explained, "Mr. Keith stated that the matter was very distasteful to him."

Mr. Keith's formal notice of appointment will follow within the next few days, but until that time he is to feel free to act as special prosecutor in the county and proceed with any action that he may deem necessary or advisable in the Butt case, Mr. Woodruff declared.

STUDENT KILLED IN AUTO MISHAP

Six Others Are Injured When Bob-Sled Collides With Automobile Saturday Evening.

(By Associated Press.)
Baltimore, Md., Jan. 12.—Lynn F. Gruber, 22, a divinity student of Western Maryland College, was killed and six others suffered injuries ranging from fractured thighs and legs to bruises and contusions, when the bob-sled which Gruber was steering at Westminster collided with an automobile late Saturday night.

Gruber's neck was broken when his head was rammed between the left front wheel of the automobile and, although alive when physicians arrived at the scene of the accident, died at a local hospital shortly after being taken there by a taxicab.

Of the injured, the condition of Miss Bertha Hart, instructor in mathematics at the college, is critical. Miss Hart was seated on the sled directly behind Gruber, and when the crash came was hurled over his head, her body striking the machine with great force. Miss Hart was also brought to this city and taken to the Maryland General Hospital. She sustained a compound fracture of the thigh and fractured jaw and was suffering severely from shock. Miss Hart is 24 years old and resides at 219 Washington street, Cumberland, Md.

and urgently advisable."

Attorney General Woodruff let it be known that the appointment of Mr. Keith as special district attorney for Adams county was no reflection on the ability of John P. Butt, Jr., the present district attorney there. He explained that it would have placed the district attorney in a rather embarrassing position to prosecute a criminal charge against his father, and that, furthermore, it would have been improper to have him prosecute a charge against Mr. Butt, because of his connection with the firm of Butt and Butt, which may possibly be involved in the action.

Proceed At Once
In his letter asking Mr. Keith to accept the appointment, the attorney general stated that upon his acceptance of the appointment, he was to proceed at once, adding that the formal notification would be in his hands within a day or two.

Attorney General Woodruff said he did not feel at liberty to divulge any of the information he had received from persons in Adams county before Judge McPherson asked him to appoint a special district attorney to prosecute the eldest Butt, if evidence justified a prosecution.

KANSAS COURT OUTLAWS KLAN

Supreme Tribunal of State Rules Ku Klux Organization Operates For Profit.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 12.—The Ku Klux Klan has been outlawed by the supreme court of Kansas. Putting an end to a battle that has been waged between the klan and state for more than two years, the supreme court handed down a decision sustaining the state's plea and ousting the klan from Kansas.

The contention of Attorney General Charles B. Griffith, that the klan was operating for profit, and therefore would require authority from the state charter board, was upheld. Attorneys for the klan had countered that the purpose of the order was benevolent and, as such, would not need a corporate charter.

The immediate effect of the decision will be to outlaw the klan as an organization in Kansas. To obtain a charter the sanction of the state charter board must be sought. This body is composed of the attorney general, secretary of state and bank commissioner. The first two, elective officers, were both elected last November on anti-klan platforms. The third member is appointed by the governor. The suit was instituted November 21, 1922, at the direction of Governor Henry J. Allen.

Harrisburg, Jan. 12.—Republican presidential electors chosen in Pennsylvania at the general election in November gathered here today to cast the state's 38 votes in the electoral college for President Coolidge and Charles G. Dawes.

WOMEN ADDRESS G. O. P. MEETING

Republican Women's Club of County Hears Interesting Talks at Saturday's Session.

A meeting of the Republican Women's club of Adams county was held Saturday afternoon in the club rooms on Baltimore street. After current business had been disposed of, the program of the day was taken up. Mrs. Tacy Swift, of Biglerville, presented an able paper on "Forest Conservation," telling of the great monetary value of forests as well as their use in the prevention of erosion, destructive floods, and purification of air and water. She spoke at length on the prevention of forest fires.

Mrs. J. W. Moore, of Gettysburg, occupied the next period, speaking on the subject "Current Political Events." She outlined the general conditions in the nations of the world and said that all seemed to be getting on a better basis, and that everything seemed to tend toward peace and prosperity.

In the United States, she said, legislation on the control of breweries and distilleries will be an important question, as well as the ever-present tax question.

The next meeting of the club will be held on February 14.

TOO MANY "K's" PUZZLE FAMILY

A Christmas package addressed "K Lemons, Bloomsburg, Pa." revealed the fact there were six members of one family with a legitimate claim for it. Every child of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Lemons put in a claim, and it was necessary to open the package before ownership was established. Their first child, named Kenneth, now lives in Columbus, Ohio, and the other children have also been given names beginning with "K." They are Keith, Toledo, Ohio, and Karl, Katiaryn, Kelma and Kleir, at home.

Another coincidence in Mrs. Lemons' family also was revealed. She was one of four daughters of J. B. DeLong, of Orangeville, all of whom married men whose names begin with the same letter as the girls' first names. Pearl married William Pitts, of Hanover; Jean married G. G. Jones, of Columbus, Ohio; Lulu married W. A. Lemons, of Bloomsburg, and Zella married a Mr. Zeigler, of Gettysburg. Thus the children became Pearl Pitts, Jean Jones, Lulu Lemons, and Zella Zeigler.

JURY CONVICTS BOY OF MURDER

(By Associated Press.)
Pottsville, Jan. 12.—William C. Cavalier, 14 years old, convicted of first degree murder for killing his grandmother last September, today faces death in the electric chair.

The youngest defendant ever convicted of such a crime in Schuylkill county, Cavalier was found guilty Saturday of having shot his grandparent seven times and of having stolen $58 from her stocking as she lay dying.

The boy showed no emotion when the verdict was delivered and when informed of the grave consequences of the conviction made a remark, picked up a book and started to read.

THREE MILLION STARVE IN JAPAN

(By Associated Press.)
Tokio, Jan. 12.—As the intensity of winter in Korea increases more than three million persons are reported suffering from famine.

Reports indicate that more than 50,000 extreme cases of starvation exist in one district alone. The peasantry is attempting to stave off death by living on the bark of trees.

Government relief measures are wholly inadequate.

"40-8" TO HOLD 500-CARD PARTY

The "40 and 8" society of the Albert J. Lentz post of the American Legion will hold a progressive 500 card party at its rooms on the third floor of the First National Bank building, Center Square, Tuesday evening, January 13, starting at 8 o'clock. The party is open to the public. Prizes will be awarded the winners, and refreshments will be on sale. The "40 and 8" expects a large attendance at the card party, since it is not limited to Legionnaires, their wives or only members of the "40 and 8" organization.

"You need not worry about your brother," Elsa Franks said. "He will not know you when you go to see him. He has forgotten most things. This man's name was Ahrensela. I told him the whole truth. I am quite sure that if he had come into charge of the prison whilst the real No. 29 had been there, he would have found some excuse for having him shot within twenty-four hours. He even told me so. He was furious at the trick which had been played. 'But,' he declared, 'the Englishman who has put himself in No. 29's place shall suffer for him.' I was allowed to see your brother. He had got over the first shock of what had happened and I found him full of courage. We discussed several plans for his escape, which, however, we never carried into effect. I do not believe that any one could have bought the life of No. 29 from Ahrensela for a million pounds. With your brother, however, it was different. In the end, I made over to him one of your brother's drafts—one I took back from Ivan Krossneys after he was dead—cashed one of the smaller ones, and one dark night we drove away from the fortress."

"But this is all so long ago!" Mary exclaimed wonderingly.

The woman nodded.

"We were in the train for Petrograd," she went on, "when I had a message from Ahrensela, telling me that he was superseded. His successor had arrived, and was holding an inquiry into the escape of No. 29. He advised me not to go near Petrograd. We left the train just as a company of soldiers from the fortress arrived on the platform. The train was held up and searched. We took a carriage and drove away, anywhere, into the plains. We had money but nothing else. We bought the carriage and horses, bought the driver, body and soul. Driving by night, resting the horses and hiding ourselves by day, we traveled a hundred miles south-eastward."

"You must tell me the rest another time," Lady Mary suggested.

"What I am going to tell you, I shall tell you now or never," Elsa Franks answered fiercely. "It won't be much, I can promise you. When I leave this house, the story of these months is coming out of my mind, whether I have to dull it by drinking or even cut it out of my brain. We were always in danger, always being tracked. We went short distances by train. Sometimes we hired carriages. We even traveled for the whole of one day in an electric car which crawled between two small towns. Seven times we tried to cross the frontier into Poland, and each time we were turned back. Once they heard of us and we were placed under arrest. Your brother shot two of the guards and we escaped. After that it was life or death with us. We were passed across the frontier at last in a spot where the war zone had been. We were scarcely in Poland before half a regiment of Russians was after us. We were in Poland, however. We left them fighting. We heard afterward that the Russians who had crossed the frontier were wiped out. We got across Poland, somehow or other, into Germany. The rest was all discomfort and misery, but most of the danger was past. Your brother fell ill in Warsaw. Since then he has been dazed and weak, with a high temperature, and with fits of unconsciousness. How I got him here, I don't know. We arrived at Fenchurch street this morning. I drove to Charles Cross hospital and they took him at once. He was shouting like a madman. Then I drove here."

She poured out the last glass of wine from the bottle and drank it. Then she rose to her feet.

"It is a wonderful story, this!" Mary exclaimed. "You must not go away yet, or, if you do, you must come back again. My father will want to thank you."

"I do not want thanks," the woman scoffed. "I started out on this adventure because your brother had paid a great sum of money and because I had a fancy for him. I have lost that fancy, but I made up my mind that I would bring your brother home, and I have done it. I do not wish for any further payment. I have spent your brother's money freely, but I have enough left to give me all that I need in life. I do not like England and I am going away today. Is there any further question you wish to ask?"

"None that I can think of for the moment," Lady Mary admitted. "I think that it was very wonderful of you to run all these risks. You might have left my brother there and gone away with the money."

"I very nearly did," the woman confessed bluntly. "Many a time, on the way home, I wished that I had done it. Your brother has a fine courage at times, but he is a weakling in the ugly places of life. Often when I dragged him along through the mud, and he had to sleep on a stone floor, with coarse food to eat, and no wine, he would rather have come out into the open and fought for his life and ended it. I daresay, when he recovers, he will be grateful to me. There have been many times when he has hated me. Now I will go."

She rose to her feet, dabbed more powder on her face and looked at her hostess a little defiantly. Lady Mary rang the bell. Then she held out her hand.

"Thank you very much for bringing Gerald home," she said.

Elsa Franks laughed hardly. She refused the hand.

"You have no need for gratitude," she said. "I started on the job because I had a fancy for your brother. When I lost that, I went on because I am an obstinate woman. As for recompense, I still have a fortune, but I am glad that these months are over. You can tell your brother that I took Krossneys' share of the money as well as my own. When he comes to think it over, I think he will say I earned it."

She followed the butler out of the room. Mary watched her from the window with fascinated eyes, saw her hail a passing taxicab with her outstretched umbrella, watched her fling herself into it, put up her feet on the opposite seat and light a cigarette. She had the air of a woman who had accomplished a great task.

Lady Mary rang the bell.

"The car at once, Richards," she ordered. "Lord Dombey is in London. I am going to fetch him home."

Chapter VIII

Christopher had taken his seat—had already, indeed, made his maiden speech—when Gerald left the nursing home into which he had been moved from the hospital. The doctors, however, were far from satisfied with his condition. He was still thin, listless in manner, with long periods of absent-mindedness. He seemed, in a way, to have lost self-control. Mary, as they drove home together to Hinterleys house, made up her mind to break the long silence which had existed between them on the subject of Pauline.

"Gerald," she asked, "have you seen or heard anything of the De Pomerances?"

Gerald turned and looked at her out of his hollow eyes.

"Nothing," he confessed. "I wrote from the nursing home six times. I have had no reply. They must have left the hotel in South Kensington."

"Would you like me to try and find out?"

"It doesn't matter," he answered. "I have made up my mind to go there myself this afternoon."

"May I come with you?" she begged.

"If you like," he answered half-heartedly. "They won't be there, though. I am just hoping that I may hear of them."

The hope, however, was not realized. Madame and mademoiselle had left the hotel many months ago, and had left no address behind.

Gerald and his sister drove away from the hotel in silence.

"You were disappointed?" Mary asked him anxiously.

"I thought they might have left a message for me," he admitted.

"You'll come down to Hinterleys tomorrow?"

He shook his head.

"I must find her," he announced, in a tone curiously devoid of enthusiasm or hope.

Mary said nothing then, but she took him to task that evening. They had dinner tete-a-tete, Lord Hinterleys having already gone down to the country. For the first time Gerald showed some interest in Myrtle's absence.

"What did you say had become of Myrtle?" he inquired.

155,950 PAID TO SEE BALL GAMES

Chambersburg Second With Paid Admissions In Blue Ridge League.

Hagerstown, Jan. 12.—Basing the following on figures given out as the ten per cent each club turns into the league treasury, it is estimated that 155,950 persons paid to see the six teams in the Blue Ridge League perform last season.

Hagerstown led all other teams in drawing crowds having an attendance for the year of 50,025 fans; Chambersburg was second with 27,450; Martinsburg, the pennant winner, third, with 27,000 persons attending the game. Frederick was fourth, 17,625 paying to see the Hustlers play, while 17,400 paid to see the Villagers in action. Hanover was last in league attendance, with 16,450 paid admissions.

Frederick's attendance has fallen off since entering their new ball park, but it is hoped that this year will find the fans of that city showing a little more interest in the Hustlers and with "Buck" Ramsey back on the job as manager. Frederick fans can look for a team that will be right up in the fight.

Rain during the early part of the season put a crimp in many of the towns, but last year was a bad year for nearly every league.

thousand of population. That figure is about the same as the 1923 birth rate. However, the net gain to the population of the state will be greater because of the decrease in the number of deaths of infants.

One hundred and fifty thousand persons were married in the past year on licenses issued by the state. This represents a rate of 16 per 1,000 of population.

"This marriage rate indicates a healthful social condition," Dr. Batt stated. "If, however, the averages of previous years are to continue effective, ten per cent of all these marriages will be dissolved for one reason or another."

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn ray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise awaiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound to-night and you'll be delighted with your dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.—adv.

School Reserves the same night. The boys will play Edison Junior High at Harrisburg on January 23. The girls will play Carlisle High at Carlisle on the same evening. On January 23 York County Academy will play Biglerville at Biglerville.

PROTECTING SOCIETY

"The circulation of any great newspaper is so general—its sphere of influence is so unbounded—that there rests a tremendous social responsibility upon the publisher to so conduct his publication that even those things which are only potentially harmful may be avoided. There must be some censorship, call it what you will, by those who have the public interest at heart to protect society from the excesses of the law and the obscene and from many other agencies of a harmful nature. The advertising solicitor and the copy-writer and all those who have to do with advertising matter prior to publication are in a position to exert a beneficial influence."—John S. Sommer, Secretary of the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice Before the Advertising Staff of the New York Times.

DRIVE DEER INTO HILLS

Few persons except those who have suffered from the ravages of deer upon their crops realize the importance of the decision reached during the last week at a conference in Harrisburg between representatives of the state department of agriculture and the state game commission whereby land-owners are given almost unlimited powers in killing deer found invading their fields and orchards.

The action means much to the farmers and fruit growers, particularly of Adams and Franklin counties who have probably suffered greater loss than those of any other section of the state because of their proximity to the great game preserves of the South Mountain.

The deer is a noble animal and the idea of propagating for the benefit of a month's sport and of preserving fine specimens of the wild animal for posterity is very fine indeed. But when the plan interferes seriously with the advance of agriculture and horticulture, which means so much to the well being and prosperity of this community, it is high time to set aside

THE OLD BLUFFER

I'm just an easy sort o' fool
That storms around and says what's what,
Lays down the law an' makes the rule,
An' gives it to 'em good and hot;
I tell 'em what they'll have to do,
An' what'll happen if they don't.
I'll show 'em all before I'm through,
But still they seem to know I won't.

There's mother. Thirty years an' more She's seen me stompin' round the place
And heard me bang the kitchen door,
An' laughed at me right to my face;
For spite of everything I've said,
Or threatened when I've had my say
Of what I'd do, she's gone ahead
And generally has had her way.

What good's it done to storm and shout
If all my rage was just a sham?
I didn't want 'em finding out—
The soft and easy fool I am;
An' after all is said an' done
I know I had no chance to win.
I've said my say an' had my fun
An' ended up by givin' in.

Studebaker Slashes Prices Of Closed Cars

New York sweeping reductions in the prices of all closed cars just announced by the Studebaker Corporation have stirred the motor car industry as nothing else that has occurred during the Silver Anniversary Automobile Show, by reason of their effect on cars in all price ranges.

Two important cuts in price were those of the Big Six Sedan and Berline, largest of Studebaker products, the two cars which have been credited by notables visiting the show as having been responsible for wide cuts in price announced by several cars in the so called $4,000 and upward class.

Most important of the matters of interest which have developed at the show this year have been price reductions made during the week, in the effort to cover the gap beneath the quality and character of Studebaker cars on all three classes, a character made possible by the enormous production which the company brought about during the last three months of 1924.

During that quarter, Studebaker sales, announced President A. R. Erskine, exceeded those of the same quarter of last year, which had established a previous record, by 50 per cent. It was the corporation's biggest final quarter.

Imagine a girl with three lovers—each bent on possessing her—each playing the game according to his nature.

The one, Van Buren Rutger offers social prestige and wealth. The other John Thurston shows brains, will and courage, and the third, Ponape Burke, a "cave-man" uses brute force and cunning to gain his ends.

Lovely Palmyra Tree embarking on the yacht "Rainbow" for a cruise to the South Seas little dreamed of the desperate straits in which she would find herself—

LUTHERAN PASTOR LEADS MARRIAGES

Officiates at Most Monroe County Weddings in Year; One Groom Worth Dime.

Stroudsburg, Pa., Jan. 12.—The Rev. F. L. Eichner, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, is the "marrying parson" of Monroe county. An examination of the records in the marriage license bureau in the court house shows that during 1924 he officiated at forty weddings, almost double that of any of the other clergymen in the county. He has been leading for a number of years.

In this respect he runs true to form for the church, inasmuch as his predecessor, the Rev. B. F. Apple, long pastor of the church, had that title for many years and took great pride in the fact. To have been married by "Daddy" Apple, as he was lovingly called, was an event in the lives of many people of the county. The Rev. Eichner is proving a worthy successor in this regard.

The Rev. Eichner was asked concerning the fees he is paid for performing the ceremony. "Well," he said, "they differ greatly. There are some who are quite liberal, others not so much so."

Asked as to the most amusing incident in connection with weddings, he had experienced, he related the following: "A young couple entered the par-

That patch of eruption is not necessarily a serious matter! Even severe, well-established cases of eczema, ringworm or similar affections, Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap usually relieve the itching at once and quickly overcome the trouble completely. ## DRINK WATER TO HELP WASH OUT KIDNEY POISON

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Begin Taking Salts.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are no longer a source of irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; can not lithia water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.—adv.

More "Murder" Hints in McClintock Case

Investigation into the death of William Nelson McClintock, youthful Chicago millionaire, took a sensational turn in the Windy City when Chief Justice Harry Olson, of the Municipal Court, demanded that the probe be extended into the deaths of Mrs. Emma Nelson McClintock, Billy's mother, and Dr. Oscar Olson, Olson's brother, physician to the McClintock and Shephard families. Judge Olson reported that his brother, long-time friend of the McClintock family, had been seen with William D. Shephard, foster father and heir of Billy, shortly before his death.
